

Patrick Durisch is a veterinary doctor holding a Master degree in Public Health from the University of Geneva, with almost 20 years of working experience with NGOs, in Europe, Middle-East, Africa, France and Switzerland. Since February 2009, he has served as Health Programme Coordinator for the Swiss advocacy NGO Déclaration de Berne (Berne Declaration, BD, www.ladb.ch). For several decades, the BD has been campaigning to Swiss stakeholders for improved access to medicines in developing countries and for pharmaceutical innovation primarily responding to public health needs, among other issues. The BD has been involved with HAI right from the beginning in 1981 with experience in the fields of intellectual property rights (IPRs), pharmaceutical R&D debate, political lobbying and public awareness-raising campaigns.
